Thomas Berry: Selected Writings on the Earth Community (Modern Spiritual Masters)

Thomas Berry (1914-2009), a Passionist priest, was a “geologian,” historian of religion, philosopher, and the single most important Catholic voice on the link between faith, reverence for all life, and the environmental crisis. Particularly well-known for his work in popularizing the “universe story” and exploring the religious implications of the new cosmology, Berry pointed the way to a spirituality attuned to our place in the natural world, and an ethic of responsibility and care for the earth. This work, timed to mark the centenary of his birth, will offer the best guide to one of the true prophets and spiritual masters of our time.

What others say about this ebook:

Review 1:

A wonderful series of extracts from Berry's writings, well introduced. Highly recommended.

Review 2:

An outstanding compilation of short readings by Thomas Berry for thoughtful reflection on the nature of our Earth home and our Earth community. Timely as we grapple with our critical, contemporary ecological crisis and the challenge for radical change.

Review 3:

Thomas Berry, in a cosmic coincidence, is very much a wonderful mix of Thomas Merton and Wendell Berry.

A sincerely spiritual personality deeply rooted in the earth community, who writes beautifully about a philosophy of life that is both completely original and naturally familiar.

This collection is an excellent starting point before getting in deep with A Dream of the Earth.

Highly, highly recommended.

Review 4:

VERY PLEASED!

Review 5:

Very inspiring and insightful
